Experience

Although I have no formal professional experience in the computer field, I have developed a great passion for technology and computers. Through self-learning and personal projects, I have developed my knowledge and skills in areas such as web design, programming and graphic design. Through these experiences, I have gained practical experience and a solid understanding of various computer technologies. I want to apply my enthusiasm, creativity and problem-solving skills to the computer industry to contribute to exciting projects and continue my professional growth.
